

BIG SUMS OFFERED FOR CURES OF ECZEMA

Thousand Dollar Bounties Found Unnecessary.

Several cases have become known of persons in different parts of the country who have made standing offers of a thousand dollars each for some cure of treatment which would permanently cure them of eczema. The offers were withdrawn when, at a comparatively trifling expense, these persons experienced complete cures through the use of posium, the new skin remedy, which is sold for 50 cents by all good druggists, particularly Tragle's.

Posium is a new skin remedy of its remarkable healing properties in curing the worst cases of eczema and eradicating facial and other disfigurements of years' standing. All itching is stopped with first application. In minor affections, such as pimples, rash, herpes, barbers' sores, other forms of itchy, red, inflamed skin, etc., results show after an overnight application, only a small quantity being required.

No one is asked to purchase posium without first obtaining one of the free trial packages, which will be sent by mail to any one who will write direct to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth Street, New York City.

ARRANGE PROGRAM FOR UNVEILING

Interesting Exercises to Be Held at Old Blandford Church.

The Times-Dispatch Bureau, 109 North Sycamore Street, Petersburg, Va., May 31.

The Ladies' Memorial Association last evening, as far as possible, completed the program of ceremonies incident to the unveiling of the memorial windows in Old Blandford Church, erected by the States of Alabama, South Carolina, Mississippi, Tennessee, Arkansas and Maryland, to commemorate the valor of the Confederate soldiers from their respective States who fell in front of Petersburg and are buried in Blandford Cemetery.

All of the other Southern States, with the exception of Florida, Georgia and Texas, have heretofore installed their memorial windows. As has been stated, Governor Mann and staff will be present at the ceremonies.

Governor Ansell, of South Carolina, will present to the Ladies' Memorial Association the window given by that State. Mrs. Ansell will unveil the window, and Hon. Frances H. Watson will deliver an address.

The Alabama window will be presented by General C. Irvine Walker, and Mrs. Charles Brown will unveil it.

Hon. J. W. Collier will present the Mississippi window, which will be unveiled by Mrs. Lou Clark.

The Tennessee window will be unveiled by Miss Hume, and presented by the Hon. Benjamin Humphreys.

Miss Mary Harward will unveil the Arkansas window, and Miss Fannie Constable the Maryland window. It is expected that representatives from all these six States will be present. Governor Mann will accept the several windows on behalf of the Ladies' Memorial Association. The windows are beautiful specimens of art, are nine and one-half feet long by three and one-half feet wide, and while of the same general design differ in the figures, in the foliage and in the delicate coloring. They give the interior of the historic old church a most beautiful and impressive appearance.

MUNFORD'S BRILLIANT CAREER BROUGHT TO CLOSE BY DEATH

End Came After Long Illness, During Which He Wrote Great Book.

FUNERAL TO-MORROW NOON

As Lawyer, Statesman and Author, He Took Leading Part in Uplifting His State.

Surrounded by his family, Beverley Bland Munford, lawyer, statesman and author, died yesterday afternoon at 12:45 o'clock at his residence on the Hermitage Road, Henrico county, following an illness which lasted for several years.

The death of Mr. Munford was not unexpected. He had been ill for more than five years. He visited Tucson, Ariz., and Lake George, N. Y., in search of health. The change of climate brought only temporary relief. Everything that medical skill could devise was done to prolong this brilliant Virginian's life. Within the week a specialist was summoned from New York, but little could be done to stay the hand of death.

Although too ill to engage in active duties in connection with his profession, Mr. Munford recently completed his now famous work, "Virginia's Attitude Toward Slavery and Secession." This book exemplifies his devotion to Virginia and her traditions. It has been widely praised by critics in all parts of the United States and in England. It was dictated while Mr. Munford lay upon his sick bed. Yet it shows a wonderful grasp of detail and the result of a brilliant mind.

His Greatest Work.

"Virginia's Attitude Toward Slavery and Secession" was welcomed by historians as a distinct addition to Southern literature. Besides this, it is an unanswerable defense of Virginia's attitude toward an institution in connection with which she has been misrepresented.

Mr. Munford married Miss Mary Cooke Branch, daughter of the late James R. Branch, who was killed as the result of a bridge collapsing at Mayo's Island. Surviving Mr. Munford are his wife and two children, Miss Mary Sanford Munford, and Master B. B. Munford, Jr.

The bar of Richmond will meet to-day at noon at the Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of adopting resolutions of respect on the death of Mr. Munford, who was perhaps the most brilliant member of his profession in this city.

Funeral To-Morrow.

The funeral will take place to-morrow noon at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Rev. Robert W. Forsyth will officiate. The pallbearers will be: Active—Henry W. Anderson, E. Randolph Williams, Henry C. Riley, B. B. Strickfellow, Blair Bolling, Fred W. Scott, O. Raymond Brown and E. T. Cox.

Honorary—Eppa Hunton, John Kerr Branch, R. Rand Wellford, Governor Charles A. Swanson, Major Charles S. Claiborne, Carter W. Branch, John Stewart Bryan, ex-Governor A. J. Montague, Judge Edmund Waddell, Jr., Edmund Strudwick, John Skelton Williams, Judge James Keith, Senator Thomas S. Martin, Dr. Leon G. Tyler, Charles Davenport, Judge S. B. Witt, John C. Freeman, John Rutherford.

In the fall of 1881, though only twenty-four years old, he was elected to the Legislature from Pittsylvania county. He was re-elected in 1882 and again in 1885, leading the ticket each time. In the memorable contest between John S. Barbour and Major John W. Daniel for the United States Senate, Mr. Munford was one of Major Daniel's leaders. After the endorsement of the caucus had been secured, he was selected to nominate Major Daniel before the Legislature. His speech on that occasion was frequently commented upon for its eloquence.

Great Campaign Document.

In 1884 Mr. Munford was the presidential elector on the Cleveland and Hendricks ticket. He was chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the House in 1885. In the gubernatorial contest between McKinney and Mahone in 1889, Mr. Munford, at the request of the Democratic leaders, wrote a review of the legislation and attempted legislation of 1881 and 1882, which was widely distributed under the heading "Mahonism Unveiled." It was the most valuable campaign document in that political contest.

During the year 1884, in the electoral college, Mr. Munford met the late Judge Walter Staples, who was elector-at-large, and later as member of the special joint committee of the Legislature to review the work of the revisers of the Code, he was associated with Judge Staples constantly. This association resulted in a warm friendship which ended in the part of both to remove the Mahone and establish a co-partnership for the practice of law. The firm of Staples & Munford was established in Richmond in 1888 and for years enjoyed a large and lucrative practice, the partnership being terminated by the death of Judge Staples.

Again in 1889 Mr. Munford was elected to the Legislature, this time from Richmond. He was made chairman of the Finance Committee of the House, and of the special joint committee on the settlement of the State debt. Probably his most notable service to the State was as chairman of the Finance Committee, which adjusted the debt question. He devoted himself with untiring energy to this work. He made himself master of every detail, and his speech in presenting the Oglethorpe settlement to the House was the most concise and lucid statement.

Strong Party Worker.

Mr. Munford was temporary chairman of the gubernatorial convention of 1893. His address in opening the convention was such an able exposition of the principles of the Democratic party that it was distributed by the committee and read throughout the State as a campaign document. He led the opposition in the Staunton convention of 1896 to the adoption of the platform which would commit the party to the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1. Believing that the maintenance of the integrity of the Democratic party organization was a matter of paramount importance, he accepted the decision of the majority of the convention and voted for Bryan for President.

Mr. Munford was always a careful student of public questions. In public and private life he was noted for the completeness with which he mastered every subject undertaken by him and the ability with which he applied the information to the accomplishment of practical results. He was especially interested in labor problems. He was a believer in organized labor, and

Sketch of His Career.

Mr. Munford was born in Richmond in 1857. He was the son of the late Colonel John D. Munford, and grandson of William Munford, of Richmond, author of Munford's Reports, whose translation of Homer's Iliad is noted for its accuracy and purity.

Mr. Munford's childhood was spent on a farm near Williamsburg. He was educated at William and Mary College. At the age of nineteen years, his father having died, he accepted a clerkship in the office of the late Judge J. D. Coles, of Pittsylvania county, where he began the study of law. He completed his law studies at the University of Virginia under Prof. John B. Minor, and was admitted to the bar, opening his office at Pittsylvania Courthouse. He soon attained success in his profession.

In the fall of 1881, though only twenty-four years old, he was elected to the Legislature from Pittsylvania county. He was re-elected in 1882 and again in 1885, leading the ticket each time. In the memorable contest between John S. Barbour and Major John W. Daniel for the United States Senate, Mr. Munford was one of Major Daniel's leaders. He was especially interested in labor problems. He was a believer in organized labor, and avored proper laws for the improvement of labor conditions.

Shortly after the death of Judge Staples the law firm of Munford, Hunton, Williams & Anderson was formed. This firm, of which Mr. Munford was a senior member at the time of his death, was perhaps the strongest combination of corporation attorneys in the State.

Brilliant as an Orator.

Despite the many calls upon Mr. Munford's time as a lawyer in active practice, he was enabled to give attention to business and educational interests in the city and State. He had been president of the South Atlantic Life Insurance Company, director of the Merchants' National Bank of the Richmond Trust and Safe Deposit Company, and a member of the board of visitors of William and Mary College and of the Hampton Normal School. He took an active interest in preserving a truthful record of the causes which precipitated the Civil War. On several occasions he made addresses and wrote and contributed articles of value to the volumes of the memorial erected over monument in honor of the Confederate soldiers of the Eastern Shore of Virginia and of the memorial erected over the grave of Miss Winnie Davis are probably the most notable and valuable of these contributions. He had been a member of the board of directors of the Virginia Historical Society, and was vestryman of St. Paul's Episcopal Church.
